THE CRITIC, 443 D STREET, N. W., WASHINGTON, D. C., SEPT. 5, 1890.

HON. FRANK LAWLER, member of Congress from Illinois, is a unique character, and, when he wants anything from the public, he does not hesitate to ask for it in a careful and entirely respectful manner. Having become tired of a seat in the House, he has concluded to become sheriff of Cook County. This purpose he has expressed in a letter to the public, "Being credibly informed," he writes, "that others who also seek this nomination have either written or called in person and presented their offer. I am prompted to say that, if nominated, I will be elected, and pledge myself to manage the affairs of that office in the interest of the taxpayers of Cook County. I am largely moved to this ambition by the fact that I believe I can be more useful to the whole people of Cook in the office I seek than by continuing longer in Congress." He says there is too much worry in looking after private affairs of his constituents at Washington. Moreover, the pay is small. Therefore he seeks a position where remuneration is such that I can give my whole time and ability to the service of the people."

A CORRESPONDENT calls our attention to the fact that REED, as Speaker, forbade the use of ardent spirits in the House restaurant, and says: "This was only a bluff—a spry one to catch woodcocks—a bid to capture some of the prohibitionists that went against him at the last election." The correspondent, whose paper has been received too late for publication, then adds: "He tickled the ribs of the temperance folks profitably when he issued this bluff. It was a point by it, and chuckled in the belief that he had made new friends among the temperance folks in Portland, Me., and the region round about; but let any person, at this day and date, go to the House restaurant and call for a 'whisky punch' or a 'whisky straight,' and it would astonish the beholder to observe how easily and nonchalantly the material would be handed out by the bartender. And Speaker REED is perfectly aware of the violation of his order, and winks at it." This is a serious charge, and it is hoped that our correspondent is mistaken. What is given out over the restaurant may taste like whisky, and yet it may be something else—lemonade, for instance.

MR. CANNON cannot get control of his unruly member. His mouth is his master, and a very vulgar master at that. Yesterday it was slanging again. "During Mr. Cannon's speech on a question of privilege," says the Washington correspondent of the New York World, "and while he was being constantly interrupted by calls to order from the Republican side, Mr. Cannon, the author of the unprintable speech in the House last week, interrupted the proceedings to remark that he hoped the gentleman from New York would be allowed to 'let off the life there was on his stomach.' Whereupon Mr. Cannon, a Republican member from Connecticut, said: 'I am not in favor of permitting that kind of remark upon this floor.' In the Record Mr. Cannon is reported as saying: 'I hope the gentleman may get the bile off his stomach, and flash his apology,' but Mr. Cannon's remark is not reported. On all occasions, and under all circumstances, CANNON can be depended upon to be rude and vulgar.

THE PRESIDENT'S RECENT posthumous invocation of all Republicans to testify themselves and have more praise added to that which they now deserve for past energetic work by laboring unceasingly to have the entire Republican vote registered. In connection with this subject of the registration of Republicans in Maryland, we call attention to the fact that not a few Government employees appointed to the Department of Civil Service to the States from which they were appointed and vote for Presidential electors, and in off years, register in Maryland and vote for the Republican candidates for Congress. This practice is most in vogue in Mr. McCORMACK's district, and the utmost vigilance on the part of Democratic committees will be necessary to prevent the use of this kind of work being done next November than has been done heretofore. Some of the recalls should be caught and punished.

SWINBURNE'S RECENT poem denouncing the Czar of Russia, is about to serve a different purpose from that contemplated by the author. Mr. PATRICK O'BRIEN, the Irish Nationalist, proposes to induce SWINBURNE for inciting assassination, and, among other precedents, base the claim for the procedure on a well-known incident in the career of the Anarchist MOY. MOY, when proprietor of the socialist journal in London called the Proletarian, advised the assassination of ALEXANDER, the then Czar, for the good of his subjects. The British authorities had MOY arrested, tried, convicted and sentenced to two years in Newgate. If Mr. O'BRIEN's demand for the prosecution of SWINBURNE is denied he means to charge the Tories with encouraging the assassination of foreign monarchs.

MR. KENNEDY, the Ohio Congressman who made such a vindictive attack upon the Senate and personally denounced Senator QUAY, is reviving his speech, and it is believed by some of his Republican friends that he will eliminate all objectionable matter. Those who believe this will be disappointed. Mr. KENNEDY is a sensationist, and likes notoriety. It was he who attacked General LOGAN and the

AMUSEMENTS.

Fay Templeton's Spanish Dance.
The name and fame of Carmencita, the young Spanish dancer, who has turned all the heads in New York, has occupied more newspaper space than that of any other of the world's dancers, but there is no more delightful sight of the dance of the New York of old Spain than the American girl, who now holds the boards at Albion's. Not to see "Hendrick Hudson," and especially the second act, is to miss one of the best treats of the theatrical season. Last night again the encores were terrific, and, in response, Miss Templeton repeated the dance three times and had to bow her acknowledgments many times. In the third act the part of Miss Templeton and Mr. Ed. Stevens, "The Same Thing Over Again," is a charming comedy of popular airs, and the audience never ceases to have a laugh at it. Again to-night and to-morrow night and night.

Emma Juch in Good Luck.
The Emma Juch Good Luck English Opera Company will be mainly engaged until December in the pleasing and profitable task of opening new theatres. It began in Denver with the New Broadway Theatre, and though the summer holiday season was not over it played there to nearly $100,000 in two weeks. Last Monday night it opened the New Albany Theatre in the western part of Chicago, and the previous house, which seats over 2,000 people, was thronged to the doors on the occasion. The opera was "Faust," and it was magisterially presented. Although the singers did not reach Chicago from Denver until 4:30 o'clock in the afternoon.

The Inter-Ocean thus spoke of Miss Juch's part of the performance: "The Juch, with the grace of the night as Marguerite, Personal charm and rare accomplishments as a singer makes her the leading native prima donna to-day in America. Through artistic schooling and the gifts of nature, she is a character of the first order. The role of Gounod's Lyre heroine is admirably adapted to her as an impersonator. The peculiar quality of her voice, the beauty of her enunciation and her part in the impetuous love scene at the end of the act was the occasion for a similar demonstration. Miss Juch is to be accorded the credit of a distinct personal triumph."

The new Juch Opera Company open the new Juch Opera House in Milwaukee. Every seat has been sold for the opening at a large premium. It will be seen in this city at the New National Theatre the week of November 17.

Francis Wilson's success.
In "The Merry Monarch," Francis Wilson's wonderfully successful operetta, now crowding the big Broadway Theatre in New York to the doors, there appears two little negro boys who figure very prominently and comically in the third act. By dancing to the music of "Love Will Find the Way." The boys are very comically introduced and are really the royal train-bearers to the merry monarch.

The New York Society for the Protection of Children in calling to account several New York managers, who have children performing in their theatres, summoned Mr. Wilson the other day. The evidence showed that the comedian had taken the children from the streets of Washington, and the labor they performed was trifling, and the influence good, and that their salaries were paid regularly to their mothers, while the youngsters were placed in charge of a woman especially engaged to care for them, and that their board, clothing and expenses were defrayed by the mother.

The Society dismissed the case with many warm words of commendation to the comedian.

Pauline Bachelier at Kerner's.
Miss Pauline Bachelier, who plays the title role of Tommy Dayton's laughable burlesque, "Her Minnie," and who is the life and spirit of that racy production now running at Kerner's, grows prettier and more popular every season. Miss Bachelier not only possesses a talent of a high order, but dances with grace. She has a lithic, symmetrical figure that many a Spanish dancer would envy. It was she who first introduced the Spanish dance on the American stage, even several years ago executing a favorite fandango that invariably won her repeated encores.

Miss Bachelier does not have to rely on diamonds and imported costumes to make her the star of the house, but true merit. She would look prettier in an American-made costume than a great many look in imported costumes, which they scarcely know how to wear.

Miss Bachelier's native grace, which was not purchased in Paris, her rich voice, which was not cultivated in Europe, and her perfect form, which nature, not art, gave her, combine to make her a star of the first order.

The most beautiful, talented and popular queen of burlesque.

PERSONAL.
Talmadge is growing stout. Tonyway was Owen Meredith to be his successor.

Mr. McKee turned a look at Baby McKee while the latter was bathing.

Professor E. Stone Wiggin, the Canadian weather prophet, believes in the transmigration of souls.

Bismarck's wife is expert with the needle and is famous as a cook. She is also remarkable for her simple piety and for her charities.

Mrs. John A. Logan is quite an adept with carpenter's tools, and can put up a shelf or build a cupboard almost as skillfully as if she had learned the trade.

Mrs. Jacob Benton of Lancaster, N. H., who has been a hopeless invalid for the past seven years, has made herself the mistress of five languages, including Volapuk.

Queen Margaret of Italy likes nothing so much as to amuse her guests with fine, hoarse and abuse used and worn at different periods at the various courts of the states of Italy.

Oscar Wilde plays on the piano, and he has been counseling to the public that when he is asked to play he should be heard by crying over his shoulder that he had never committed.

Sara Grace Jewett is said to be the prettiest of Boston's literary women. She is the daughter of a Maine sea captain, and is a dark-haired, graceful woman, with a Madonna-like face.

Miss Janss will begin her next season's tour in Providence, October 5, with an English translation of Dr. Heinrich Lausler's "Graf von Eberstein," acting of course, the part of Queen Elizabeth.

The preceding nomination, proposition and preparation of Queen Elizabeth makes this nomination different from others and superior to all others in the world. It is a dark-haired, graceful woman, with a Madonna-like face.

SENATORIAL BUFFETS.

Some Notes on a Subject Recently Much Exploited.

Visit of George Pendleton.
The first buffet ever seen in a Senate committee room was that which the late George Pendleton had in the room of the Committee on Library when he was chairman. Mr. Pendleton, who was not much of a drinker so far as quantity was concerned, was fond of mixed drinks and was fond of the best of his preparation. He knew all about the mysteries of abstemiousness, vermouth, benevolence and the other cordials; was familiar with the use of a dripping glass, and could mix a red, white and blue punch that would stir the boldest Senator into an outburst of patriotism.

When Senator Mahone took charge of the Library Committee room in 1887, he changed the name of his preparation, with its array of cut glass, and substituted there a plain demijohn of whisky and a tin cup of generous size. When Senator Carlisle took a drink, which is said to be a late Senator into an outburst of patriotism.

Love at First Sight.
A Washington man breaks the record at Atlantic City.

From the Philadelphia Record-Examiner.
The meeting of a young man and woman, entire strangers, an introduction, love at first sight, a short promenade and a wedding, all within a half hour, tells the tale of the quickest marriage on record.

It happened at Atlantic City a few days ago, when two young ladies of Philadelphia, while strolling on the board walk, met two gentlemen, one a clerk, the other a commercial traveler of Washington, D. C., with both of whom one of the young ladies was acquainted. Introductions followed, and in a few moments they parted for the purpose of promenade on the beach.

One of the young ladies was Miss Nattie Dahl of Philadelphia, and her escort was William B. Perkins of Washington. During their walk the acquaintance ripened into a deeper feeling, and in a remarkably short space of time Cupid found himself hard at work as referee in a regular matrimonial infatuation party.

Then the swain, being unequal to the task of withholding his affection, proposed marriage, and to his joyful surprise was promptly accepted. The young man, who is a clerk, and the young lady, who is a commercial traveler, are now on their way to the altar.

The name of William B. Perkins is not in the City Directory.

JOE CANNON'S DISGRACE.
Will the Men and Women of His District be Satisfied?

From the New York Sun.
Joseph G. Cannon was re-nominated for Congress by the Republicans of the Fifteenth Illinois District on the day after he had disgraced himself, the House of Representatives and the American people by his hideous vulgarities in the third act of the story of the children in the House of Representatives.

They have shown that they regard the fellow at whose words women ran in shame and disgust from the House galleries as their worthy representative.

There must be thousands of clean-hearted and clean-minded gentlemen in the Fifteenth Illinois district who are alive to the shame of having it represented by such a person as Cannon.

Are the voters there willing to have the rest of the country believe that Cannon is a man after their own heart, and that they are made in his image? Will they adopt disgrace or shake it off? If the women of Cannon's district could vote there could be no doubt of the result.

The Pennsylvania Railroad will take you to Atlantic City and return for you by the shortest route, and will stop at the hotel of your choice.

Operator Domes Denies.
Editor Critic: I see by your paper of last evening that you have published in connection with a scheme said to be sent out from Police Headquarters. I want to distinctly understand that I was in no way connected with it, and did not even know of its existence until it was printed. He admitted his connection with the scheme to two Chicago reporters, and when charged with sending the matter out treated the accusation in a flippant and jesting manner that could not be dignified as a serious denial.
